Dear Belle,

Yours just received – I write in great haste, for the mail. – We do not think you had better bring Ella for two reasons – one that we want her to come Commencement, – the other that they are getting rather particular about many visitors at once. – Louise does not go this week, but will go down Monday with you. We think the best way will be for you to engage the hackman Saturday night to come for you for whatever train you will wish to take. There is one as early as 6. A.M., – but do not go in that unless you must. – – It makes no difference to L. — Come, Auntie Belle, without fail,

Yours

S.
