Dear people,

Please believe I am always well even when I do not write and do not be alarmed. Sometimes I have a laay fit, and do not write when I should, and sometimes a busy one - Four years ol regularity have done something to mend my ways, but yet not enough, and whenever X can find a loop-hole through which to escape regular action I try it still - Saturday your letters came one mail earlier than usual. I think the trip to New York must be made a lew hours sooner than it used to be. This fall has been an extremely pleasant one, less cold weather than other years when I have been North - Ol course there has been heat on in the house since we came back, but we have worn summer cslicoes, and not put on our winter flannels yet - 1 think I shall wear my "cheap but pretty" some time longer, and 11 I find it warm enough, shall do so all winter. In fact I find it is nearly only the thing I shall have. I am very glad to receive the printed account of the Ladies1 Supper, but I would have liked a longer description of your own appearance and actions - Did I write you that Miss Allen of Galveston decided not to remain here? Cliffie tells me that her father is of the firm of Allen and Pritchard I think the name is - Mrs. Waul said that she knew the family - A few days ago I strained my ankle a little and walked lame for a while. Now, however it is entirely well - It was a very fortunate escape, for a few days after another girl also slipped in going downstairs and is now going on crutches - I toll you ol my slight accident, so that II you should afterwards hear me speak ol it, you could not think Z had concealed from you something serious, for it was quite the contrary. One of the girls Is talking, and Z am In haste to post this, so please excuse all mistakes, and bad writing -

With love, J. M. Pease
