

Vassar, March 16. (1874?)

Dear Mother,

Yours has just come. I have not heard from Stewart's yet. Suppose

I shall tomorrow. I am not sure that I understand what you meant by the last letter. things were run together so. Stewart advertises striped silks at

.75 per yard. That would make the dress come to 16.50

If he sends me nothing less than .75 what shall I do?

I don't think foulard's are very pretty. You have looked in Providence and there is nothing there anyway.

If I can find nothing less than .75 in town and Stewart sends me nothing else, what shall I do? Write so I can get it Friday or sooner and send the money, if you can. If S. sends patterns of anything pretty, I shall send to him without delay, [so if you c]

E. M. Tappan.
