

[April 11, 1909]

Dear Family-

It has been such a nice Easter -- such a beautiful, fresh, clear day. [There's] [lovely] music tonight. This morning I went to Church and the music was very good. [Val] took [Livias] [over] to the Inn for dinner, so I feel quite festive. This afternoon Margaret Brady and I had a nice walk that freshened up our [unreadable].

The Easter music tonight was particularly nice as it wasn't as [pretentious] as [some] we have had, but was thoroughly sweet. Professor Gow had written words and music to a Motet which he dedicated to the soloists of 1909 and it was exquisite. The choir [will] be sadly in need of good soloists for next year, as the Seniors are out of it now. Theta and Omega Chapters are giving a play next Saturday - it is an Irish Comedy and is intensely stupid, but our Liliias and I are the two men - she the leading man (!) and I the fiance! Most everybody else in it are [H] Freshman, so we feel very aged and important.

The [green] dress made J's debut tonight, and is much admired - everybody put on their most [scrumptious] frocks - for no reason in particular.

My brain seems singularly stupid and I [don't] [think] of anything interesting that has happened. Hope you are all [well] and flourishing.

Ever Lovingly

Marjorie

April 11, 1909

[Postmark] Poughkeepsie

6-30 PM

APR 12-09

Dr. Alexander MacCoy
Mrs. William P. Logan
Overbrook Ave. and 58th St.
Philadelphia