

[postmarked 10 Jan 1923]

Dear Mother, Father, and Pete:

All I can report since yesterday's letter is a terrific headache whch[sic] took me to bed for yesterday afternoon and evening and kept me from working, but which is all gone today.

I wrote to Louise last night. Is she having a reception, Mother?

How were the parties? I have heard nothing from you yet.

Love,

Fannie

January 11, 1923

Please note that there is only one mistake in this letter.