

Dear Mother, Father, and Pete:

Evan showed me a telegram yesterday morning which she had just received fromBowers, president of the Harvard Debating Club, challenging us to a Freshman Harvard--Vassar debate for March 7. Dr. Nettleton asked the Freshmen to stay after chapel to vote and there was much laughter. I suppose, of course, that they will do it. I think it would be great, because it would probably mean a regular debate next year.

We had a Council meeting yesterday to consider the challenges for this year, and of Williams, Amherst, and Penn, accepted Williams and Penn. I voted for Amherst instead of Penn, but I was the only one to do so. Penn doesn't thrill me in the least, but they wanted a university instead of a college this time, so let them have it. The Penn debate will be at Penn.

I have almost finished writing my English topic, and then comes the boring part of copying it. My heart certainly goes out to those poor souls who don't type!

The snow is wonderful--I wish I had time to coast!

Love,

Fannie

Sorry I can't come to the meeting of the congregation, Pete!
