

Dear Mother, Father, and Pete:

I have started writing up my second psych topic! I shall retire from the world until it is finished, except for an interruption for Third Hall tonight. It is a glorious day for it. We don't sit on the ground, Mother--we sit on chairs. They fill the theater with chairs for Third Hall and for Commencement celebrations. Class Day, etc.

I don't know much new, except that we had a debate meeting prior to sending Gamp and Peggy off to the Conference of the League at Barnard next Saturday. The two changes that I advocated strongly were cutting the time of preparation down to three weeks instead of six and having speeches go straight through without intermission before rebuttals. That is a much greater test of ingenuity, mentality, etc. than having time to be told by your captain what to say. I also urged one week of tryouts instead of two. I think the length of weeks covered by the league debates is enough to keep the best out of them. Everybody agreed--in fact, everybody strongly suggested the same thing.

Haven't done anything exciting to write an interesting letter about--except to have spring fever, and I can't write a book on that.

Love,
Fannie

Friday.

Dear Mother,

You asked some time ago about my bowels. I have been having to alternate between liberal doses of cascara and two pills. If I last that way for another month I will be satisfied and then I mean get straightened out when I get home. It means a lot to me to have them move early in the morning, so I hope this system will continue to be effective for another month.

I think it would be great if you came up in the car, if you go as far as Harrisburg. The only objection I have is that Sam will then know about the doctor business, and I hate "servant-gossip" I don't think a moderate amount of touring will do me any harm. In fact, I am convinced that the invalid life has done me absolutely no good and I don't see why I shouldn't enjoy things a little now.

I am enclosing a Letter from Dr. F. I wonder what good he thinks writing to him every week is going to do my health, as long as I am not going to have any more treatments!

What do you think of my prospective course? It looks very good to me—and I am quite pleased at the idea of doing more in Economics.

Eve, Fannie

Just remember that I tore the letter up - simply said that I should discontinue treat. + let him know in 1 wk how I am "progressing"

Introduction

Psych. crowd - constitution of

Group spirit

Qualities of

Gregariousness of man as motive of crowd psych. - [Trotter]

Characteristics of highly organized groups

Lecture of Crowds - [Conway]

4. Characteristics of all crowds.

1. sentiments + morality

2. Ideas, Reasoning Power, Imagination

3. Religious shape assumed by all crowd [connections]

4. Opinions + beliefs of crowds

5 - < > Crowd leaders + their means of persuasion

6. Limitations to variability of belief + opinions of crowds
 7. Classification + Description of Diff Kinds of crowds
 8. Crowd at War.
 9. Crowd organization
 10. [Some] considerations in regard to crowd
 - 11 Life cycle of a [readle]
 - 12 Conclusion
- <203 Davison>