Biographical Note

Sarah Gibson Blanding, sixth president - and first woman president - of Vassar college, was born in Lexington, Kentucky in 1898. With her certificate from the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics, she was offered two positions to teach physical education in high schools, but she took a similar position at the University of Kentucky for half the pay. Here she taught and studied, and received her B.A. in 1923. Her teaching and administrative abilities so impressed the university authorities that she was named acting dean at the age of twenty-four. After one year she left for Columbia University to earn an M.A. Two years later Miss Blanding studied at the London School of Economics with Harold Laski and then returned to the University of Kentucky as Dean of Women and teacher of political science until 1941. During these years, she lived on a 250-acre farm and raised tobacco of such high quality that it brought twice the going price.

Although a social scientist, not a home economist, in 1941 she became head of New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell, a position she held for five years. During World War II she served on the Joint Army and Navy Committee on Welfare and Recreation. She was also appointed to the War Department Civilian Advisory Council and to the Chief of Staff's National Civilian Advisory Committee for the Women's Army Corps.

When Miss Blanding was appointed president of Vassar in 1946, she not only took on the responsibilities of that office but also was called upon to serve on many public and private committees. She was successful in raising money for the college, hiring more male faculty members, increasing faculty salaries, introducing new curriculum, and bringing to Vassar the Mellon Fund grant for the study of personal growth and change during the college years. In 1964 she retired to her home in Lakeville, Connecticut, but continued to serve on the boards of numerous educational organizations. Blanding died in 1985 at the age of 86 at a retirement home in Newtown, Pennsylvania, where she had lived since 1980.

Scope and Content Note

The Vassar College Archives does not have a full set of official records for Miss Blanding's presidency. In 2002, 26 cartons of official material were removed from a collection previously associated with the presidency of her successor, Alan Simpson. The records consist primarily of internal college affairs, including trustee communications, committee records, faculty records, contracts, gifts to the college, scholarships, annual reports, events and programs, and other materials related to the operations of Vassar College.

In addition to those boxes, there is a small collection of materials previously transferred to the College Archives titled the "Original Library Collection," including: correspondence, memoranda, clippings, articles, speeches, and press releases during her tenure at Vassar, 1946-1964. Subject matter includes women's education, academic freedom, 1950's politics, her stand against Congressional investigation of Communist influence in education, her introduction to Adlai Stevenson on a radio program, and her 14 April 1962 statement on pre-marital sex and Vassar students. Correspondence is largely letters received, including those from Marian Anderson, Elizabeth Bowen, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Robert Oppenheimer, Eleanor Roosevelt, and Adlai Stevenson. Other items include diaries, scrapbooks, biographical articles, materials relating to her inauguration, diplomas, and citations, 1911-1985.
